

Metadata Best Practices: Entering Rights

This document will cover best practices for entering rights statements in Coresource. Please note that there are a variety of ways to enter the same statements – these are our best practice guidelines based on how retailers process the rights once received.

Notes on entering Rights

Enter the rights that we have to distribute your title. If your title has world rights, but you have only signed with us to distribute in the US and Canada, please only enter US and CA rights. Your rights in CoreSource should reflect the intersection of your author contract and our distribution rights to sell the title.

If your title does not have worldwide rights, it is best to express rights using only countries. Please use only countries for rights, with the exception of the region "WORLD," which can be safely used. Certain feeds cannot except regions as rights expressions.

Enter your rights for each Asset. Rights are not entered at the Title Group level, and need to be entered for each asset individually since rights can be different based on the book format (print book vs. eBook, for example).

Adding or Updating Sales Rights in CoreSource

To add or update rights directly in the CoreSource interface:

- Navigate to the Asset Details page of the ISBN you'd like to change (for more help on navigation, please refer to the QuickStart guide on searching.)
- Select the "Sales Rights & Restrictions" tab from the left hand navigation and click the "Edit" button.
- If you are adding rights for the first time, use the "add" link to add a new row of rights.
- Countries and Regions (for use with WORLD only) can be selected either from the pop up icon to the right of the text boxes, or typed as ISO codes separated by spaces.

As a best practice, if your title does not have worldwide rights, the title should have a rights statement that contains both sales rights types 01 (Exclusive) or 02 (Non-Exclusive) and 03 (Not for Sale) as retailers will sometimes read one or the other of these and not necessarily both. Please note that for a given entry it's not necessary to include countries or regions in the "Excluded" column because you will list them instead as 03 Not for Sale. See examples below:

World Rights

For Perseus Migrated Clients

- Sales Restriction is known depreciated value from the Perseus legacy systems, but it should be noted that this was a holdover from managing relationships in Canada and is no longer necessary.
- Title rights that transferred to CoreSource via ONIX may have extended Country Code listings in the Countries Included section of Sales Rights & Restrictions. If you have World rights for a title, you can eliminate the extended list of Country Codes by using the WORLD selection under Regions Included. If you have made this selection, you do not need to have anything else selected. As you are adding new titles, you can use this method as well. When the title data goes out in distribution channels with the WORLD Region code, it will break out the individual country codes. This formatting is ideal for CoreSource Tip Sheets, which can display many pages of broken out country codes if they are selected in the UI.

Rights Code Types

Unless you are being extremely specific about your rights, we expect that you can use rights statements 01-03 only to express your rights.

- 01 For unrestricted sale with exclusive rights in the specific countries or territories: You are the only publisher publishing this title in these countries - this displays in the CoreSource interface as "Exclusive."
- 02 For unrestricted sale with non-exclusive rights in the specified countries or territories: You are not the only publisher publishing

this title in these countries - this displays in the CoreSource interface as "Non-Exclusive."

- 03 Not for sale in the specified countries or territories (reason unspecified): Title not for sale in these countries
